Announcement Regarding the Establishment of Overseas Locations

The Toyota Tsusho Group's NEXTY Electronics Corporation (Headquarters: Minato-ku, Tokyo; President: Atsushi Aoki; hereinafter referred to as "NEXTY Electronics") has established five new locations in China, the Czech Republic, Spain, and Mexico. Details are as follows.

Details

1. Shanghai Corporate Office, Tianjin Branch

[Background & Objectives]

The automotive industry is undergoing rapid technological innovation, and 28.08 million vehicles are sold each year in China* with no decline in sight. NEXTY Electronics has therefore established a new location in Tianjin, in order to propose products to our customers based on the latest technology and to further strengthen our marketing and sales activities in China.

2. Germany Corporate Office, Czech Republic Branch/Spain Branch

[Background & Objectives]

The European market is just as large as the US market in terms of the number of automobiles sold, and European automobile manufacturers are working on development of products at a technological level equal to that of Japan and the US. Furthermore, Spain and the Czech Republic are both important countries for the European manufacturing industry with many domestic manufacturing locations. By opening branches in Barcelona and Prague, we will build product/parts supply and technology/quality support systems that are both optimized and efficient for operation, in order to serve our customers' production bases.
