NEXTY Electronics CorporationNEXTY Electronics Now Offers On-board Communication Devices for Use
With Honda's Connected Service for Fleet Motorcycles

NEXTY Electronics Corporation (HQ: Minato-ku, Tokyo; President & Representative Director: Atsushi Aoki; herein after referred to as "NEXTY Electronics") has developed and begun offering GPS-enabled on-board communication devices, for use with Honda FLEET MANAGEMENT, a connected service provided by Honda for fleet motorcycles.

The communication device is optimized for motorcycle-use owing to its property of being resistant to vibration, water and dust. It uses GPS to obtain the current location of a motorcycle registered with the Honda FLEET MANAGEMENT service and uploads telemetry to the cloud.

Honda FLEET MANAGEMENT is a connected service for fleet motorcycles that enables management of operational dynamics by installing NEXTY Electronics' communication devices on motorcycles that are used in various business situations. FLEET MANAGEMENT makes it possible to ascertain the location of and operation status in real time, record sudden acceleration, braking and other driving behaviors, as well as traveled routes and distances, and automatically generate daily usage reports. Customers can use the service to operate their motorcycles more efficiently based on the data they obtain/accumulate during everyday business operations, as well as employ in raising rider safety awareness.

NEXTY Electronics is a leader company in the electronics field of Toyota Tsusho group. Leveraging the sales capabilities and worldwide sales network, our business is now at a top-class scale, especially in the automotive electronics field. We will continue contributing to the acceleration of the next-generation mobility society based on our know-how gained from our achievements in the field of car electronics.
